

STATE EMERGENCY DECLARATIONS | COVID-19

(LAST UPDATED MAY 22, 2023)

COVID-19 State Emergency Declarations + Rescissions (as of May 22, 2023)

Since the inception of the COVID-19 pandemic in early 2020, every state, most territories, hundreds of tribal governments, and thousands of municipalities declared various levels of emergencies. The map above provides a comprehensive snapshot of the current status of various state-level emergency declarations issued in response to COVID-19 based on data provided by the National Governors Association, the Network for Public Health Law, and other sources. Currently:

- 0 states and/or territories have active emergency declarations;
- 0 states have active disaster declarations; and
- 0 states have active public health emergency declarations

To date, 50 states have rescinded their declarations of emergency, disaster, or public health emergency at some point over the course of the pandemic (shown in dotted formatting above). Of these states, 5 subsequently re-declared some form of emergency, although none of these are still in effect.

Note - promulgation and revocation of declarations are rapidly changing. In Wisconsin, for example, an original declaration expired on May 11, 2020. New states of emergency and public health emergency were then declared on February 4, 2021 but were consequently struck down by the state supreme court on March 31, 2021. These or other unique factors in specific jurisdictions may not be fully captured in the map above.
